

About Atomic Fission

Atomic Fission is a privately held company based in El Granada, California which provides managed information technology services to small and mid-sized organizations.

Atomic Fission was conceived on the ideology of providing enterprise-class IT solutions to business entities with limited IT budgets through the deployment of standardized IT infrastructure systems. Atomic Fission's business consultancy model allows its customers to employ enterprise-class technologies without assuming the burden of complex IT management typically associated with such services.

We contribute to the Open Source Software community, and believe in offering objective, product-neutral technical consulting.